

To Whom It May Concern:

Lea Nixon is an intelligent, ambitious young scholar who has stood out in every academic endeavor, and many extracurricular ones (e.g., Airforce JROTC, Robotics Team, Oxford EdX), and who likewise stood out in my PLSC 201 course in the Fall of 2023. Like all students who achieve so highly, Lea writes and speaks very well, and her work ethic is exemplary. What really sets her apart from peers, though, is her uncanny charisma and confidence. Though she was the only high school student attending a course designed for college freshmen and sophomores, she volunteered her thoughts and opinions in a way that encouraged her peers to do the same, and when she expressed disagreement with a claim or statement, she did so in a sophisticated manner that engendered further discussion rather than stymying it.

I was consistently astounded by the acuity of her mind, revealed through jokes, questions, and comments. She turned in every assignment early, and consistently earned marks that were the highest in the course (again, compared to enrolled college students). I have no doubt that she will find success in any and all academic pursuits.

This letter is my full and unreserved recommendation for Lea Nixon. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Tony Hobert, Jr." with a stylized flourish at the end.

Tony Hobert, Jr., PhD
Professor of Political Science
Winthrop University
Bancroft Hall, Rm 334
hoberta@winthrop.edu
617.650.9592
tonyhobert.com